Drinks are becoming somewhat more frequent.

Dr. S. S. Lord of Edgerton, was in this city to-day.

The prayer meetings last evening were numerous attended, notwithstanding the warm weather.

John L. Sullivan, the slinger, pitched a game of ball in Providence yesterday and did well.

Picnic parties this season are very few and far between. They do not average one in two weeks.

If the excursion to Racine next Sunday is successful, it is probable others will follow to other places.

The indications are that the excursion to Racine will be largely patronized. The fare is less than one cent per mile.

Tickets for the Camp Erskine excursion are selling rapidly, and a large crowd will go, if everything is favorable.

Mayor T. T. Croft, has returned from his visit to Green Lake, and looks somewhat improved, though the stay was but very short.

Attention is called to the advertisement of Mr. B. Frank Moore, the authorized agent of the Louisiana State Lottery Company in Chicago.

All the machinery for the new boot factory has arrived including the engine, boiler, shafting, etc. the workmen are engaged in putting it in place.

The Mutuals are not endeavoring to get any more ball games. The patronage is not large enough to warrant them in giving a guarantee to visiting clubs.

It will look more natural when the boys return from Racine. Reports from Camp Erskine say they are having an agreeable time, but the weather is a little hot.

The gentlemen who frequent the board of trade room are a little nervous at the way prices are ranging, and are anxiously waiting for some indications of a rise.

The threatening weather which has prevailed for the past few days, has the delightful effect of cooling the atmosphere. The heat would otherwise be intolerable.

Mr. Frank Kimball says, he would like to see the thermometer get to 100 degrees in the shade and keep there. He is a hot weather man no fear for his sufferings hereafter.

The absence of the gentlemen, members of our Janesville military companies, has made a most perceptible change on the streets. There are not near so many people about.

The base ball game yesterday resulted as follows: Chicago 6, Detroit 3, Baltimore 4, Allegheny 1, Athletics 4, St. Louis 1, Philadelphia 9, Atlantic 6, Boston 5, Metropolitan 3.

Driving these dirty days, is not a very pleasant pastime, where the sprinkling cart has failed to pass. An almost impenetrable cloud rises from Main street in the evening.

Two drunks were punished by Justice Patten to-day, by fine and imprisonment. John Wadleigh was fined $3 and costs and one day in jail, and John McDonald $3 and costs and three days in jail.

Everything indicates that the one great show of the world is owned by W. W. Cole, and will be in Janesville on August 15th.

Two small boys had a set-to on Court street this noon, which resulted in both of them getting rather dirty and scratched. The chief point of interest about the fight was the inordinate yelling made by both.

Mr. John Chapell, an old resident of Rock County, died this morning, at his residence in the town of Harmony. Mr. Chapell was 65 years of age, and had been in feeble health for some time, which was principally due to his age. The funeral will take place to-morrow afternoon.

Mr. Davenport the gentleman who is superintending the arrangement for establishing carbon and chemical works here, has returned from Chicago, and says workmen will start immediately on the building for the factory. The plans are already drawn and as soon as letters of incorporation can be obtained at Madison, the factory will begin work.

Mr. W. H. Cheesbro, a well known former Janesvillian, with Sprague, Warner & Co., of Chicago, is in the city. Mr. Cheesbro was recently married to Miss Annie Louise Moss, at Stoughton, Conn., the happy event having taken place on June 25. His many friends here are congratulating him on his success and good fortune in securing so elegant and estimable a life-partner.

Meeting Officers.

Mr. C. C. Keeler, of Beloit, was in the city yesterday, attending an adjourned annual meeting of the Mutual Protection Association of Wisconsin. At said meeting the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

President—M. C. Smith.

Vice President—James Menzies.

Medical Director—Henry Palmer, M. D.

Secretary—Hon. F. S. Lawrence.

Directors—Hon. S. C. Cobb, W. T. Vankirk, C. C. Keeler, L. B. Kinney, Henry Palmer, W. A. Lawrence.

The Weather.

Reported by FRANKLIN & EVANSON DROUGHTISTS.

The thermometer at 7 a. m. to-day registered 65 degrees above zero and at 1 p. m. 80 degrees above. For the corresponding time last year it was 62 and 79 degrees above zero.

The signal service indications for to-day were:

Upper Lake Region, Upper Mississippi and Missouri Valleys—Partly cloudy weather, local rains, winds mostly northwesterly, stationary or lower temperature and higher pressure.

Tree Trimming.

There has been a great deal of talk about the trimming of trees, and no end of suggestions offered as to the best means of doing the work without injury to the tree. A subscriber who does not admire the manner in which the trees in the park were trimmed, has sent us the following:

Editor of the Gazette.

A new and rare work should be issued from the press, entitled, "How to trim trees in public parks." The plan of the work (on the trees) is entirely new, and trees trimmed by this system are warranted not to require any further trimming for at least twenty years. Should the trees die full instructions will be found in the appendix for removing dead trunks. Practical illustrations in tree trimming will be continued daily in Court House park, till the trees are exhausted. Citizens interested in public parks, or in landscape ornamentation generally should not fail to avail themselves of an opportunity never before offered in Janesville, and never likely to be again. For further information on the subject reference is made to the board of county supervisors or to the committee on public property.

What a "Corner" Is.

A stock corner is thus explained by the New York Evening Post. The "corner" is a market consisting of all those who think that the prices of securities are higher than they ought to be, higher than they can permanently remain. In order to take advantage of the unwarranted "inflation of values," as they understand it, they borrow stocks and sell them at the high prices prevailing, expecting to be able to buy them in at a lower price before it becomes necessary to return the borrowed securities. For instance, A borrows from B, 1,000 shares of Hamilton and St. Joseph, which is selling at 60. A pays B $60,000 cash and agrees to return the stock on demand, when, of course, the money will be refunded to him. It is for B's interest to lend the stock, because he gets the interest on the $60,000 during the interval, or at all events, more interest than he would otherwise have to pay for the use of the money. Under ordinary conditions, B, the lender of the stock, will pay A, the borrower, something for the use of the money, but if the particular stock wanted by the borrower is scarce it will be lent "flat," that is the borrower will receive nothing for the use of the money while the loan continues. In extreme cases the lender may even get a commission for the use of the stock in addition to the interest on the money which it represents. If the market fluctuates while the loan continues, the borrower and lender will each endeavor to get out of the deal so that the amount of money shall at all times be exactly equivalent to the value of the stock.

When the bears, or any portion of them, have discerned a weak spot in the market, that is, a security selling for more than it is worth in their opinion—they borrow and sell liberally. Their selling has the same effect in putting down the price as though the stock were absolutely their own, and their expectation is that other holders observing the decline in price will become alarmed and sell also, thus putting down the price still more and frightening still other holders. They intend, of course, to buy enough at the lower scale of quotations to deliver back what they have borrowed, pocketing the difference. It sometimes, though rarely, happens a few persons, discovering what the bears are about, and believing that they (the bears) are strong enough to stand a heavy loss without backing, quickly buy up all of a particular stock that is offered. In order that the price may not be forced up while they themselves are buying, they lend stock to the bears, and thus encourage the latter to sell. When they have secured all, or nearly all, of the particular stock that exists, they call in their loans. The bears are then compelled to buy, and since no stock, or very little, is for sale, the price can be forced up to any figure at which the cornering party choose to put it. That is what once happened in Hamilton and St. Joseph. The "shorts" must come up and settle on such terms as may be dictated to them. The last resort is to leave the cornering party saddled with the whole issue of the stock in question. Whether they may make or lose by the operation, will depend upon whether they can extort from the bears more than enough to compensate them for the loss they may incur in re-selling the stock to the general public. Most commonly the cornering party, as well as the cornered, lose money—which has been gained meanwhile by the multitude, who have taken advantage of the high prices to sell out.

A Few Inquiries.

A stranger who was coming up from the Union depot stepped aside to ask of a man in the door of a clothing store: "My friend, can you tell me how far?"

"Do you want to buy some clothing?" interrupted the other.

"I guess not. I simply wanted to inquire how far?"

"I sell you a spring overcoat for tree dollars."

"I never wear more than one spring overcoat at the same time. I wanted to ask—"

"I have some vests for a dollar."

"That's cheap enough, but I don't want to invest. Will you let me ask you how far?"

"Do you want some barbed wire for twelve shillings?" "No."

"Some stockings for ten cents?" "No."

"Some suspenders two shillings?" "No."

"No. I wanted to ask—"

"I sell you a hat for sixty cents."

The stranger picked up his satchel and walked across the street. Then, facing about he shouted out:

"I wanted to know how far it was from Dan to Be—"

But the clothes he had thrown him out right.

"And call and examine my undershirts for forty cents!"—Detroit Free Press

Wonderful Performing Stallions.

In W. W. Cole's Nine Consolidated shows one finds every recollection of all the exercises he has ever seen reproduced with new effects and supplemented with a perfect and complete array of novelties. A person can fail to observe those equine wonders, the $50,000 tonne Royal Performing Stallions all in the ring simultaneously. These beautiful creatures were imported solely for Cole's shows and there is no limit to the admiration and delight which they excite whenever and wherever they appear. Their act is wholly unlike anything else ever attempted.

An Unquestionable American Citizen Abroad.

I ought to except from the category of the common place a long, lank citizen of the United States whom I met at Casino and almost everywhere else, surveying things in general with an inimitable air of philosophic interest and serene complacency, undisturbed by the entertainment he affords to those about him. He wears a suit of coarse and heavy black, evidently ready made, and much too large for him. The coat is a shapeless affair, very long in the skirts and the sleeves. A flannel black silk neckerchief is wound about a high limp collar, of which it is impossible to say whether it is meant to stand up or turn over, and the figure is crowned by a black felt hat, at whose stupendous breadth the effect of population of Europe are never tired of wondering. Our friend has a tangled beard of iron gray, and a stiff pollard mustache which does not conceal the substantial, open expression always playing about his mouth. He carries his hands behind him, he trends with emphasis, he throws his head back that his shrewd twinkling eyes may better view the world from under the broad felt. He loves to talk when he can find anybody who speaks our language. The first time I saw him at Monte Carlo he had fastened upon a young Englishman, reserved, responsive, fresh-faced, carefully clad, buttoned up extremely tight, his very antithesis in everything, and to this silent and somewhat reserved auditor he was imparting his impressions of the Casino, the Mediterranean, the concert we had just listened to, and in particular the manners and customs of the British visitors, occasionally throwing his jaws wide open for a short and vigorous laugh, and bending his stiff form in the middle like the shutting up of a jack-knife.

"Now, I," he exclaimed in a confidential parenthesis, "I ain't an Englishman!"

"Ah, just so," replied the young man, "I did not suppose you were."

It was the only remark of our countryman which called forth a cordial response. I saw him trailing the Corso on the morning of the carnival, wearing the same black clothes, and quite as much at his ease in the midst of dominoes, devils, and pages as in the gay throng at the gambling rooms; and I thought, What a target for confetti!

Later in the day I saw him again. He had been through the bath. The great hair, which had hitherto hung in a heavy, curly, spirit, was unruined. Erect, deliberate, observant, amused, self-possessed, taking in everything, and assimilating nothing, he was an odd figure indeed, but not a ridiculous one. He had begun to take a life in the world, and had brought to the enterprise so little preparation, that you could not help wondering how he found his way to this place from his farm on the prairies, and what sort of adventures must have befallen him on the journey; yet neither could you help respecting the independence, self-reliance, and good nature with which he illustrated so much that is estimable in the American character.

How to be Beautiful.

As we were about to start, I saw the captain move to an elevated position above the wheel; and it was interesting to see how quickly and completely the inward thought or purpose alters the outward man. He gave a quick glance to every part of the ship. He cast his eye on the multitude coming on board the ship, among whom was the American ambassador to England, who, if the captain may be said to embody the ship, may be said with equal truth to embody in his official person a nation's rights and honor. He saw the husbands and wives, the mothers and children, intrusted to his care; and his slender form, as he gave the order for our departure, seemed at once to grow more erect and firm; the muscles of his face swelled; his dark eyes gleamed with a new fire; and his whole person expanded and beautified itself by the power of inward reason. I have often noticed this interesting phenomenon; and have come to the conclusion, if man, or woman either, wishes to realize the power of personal beauty, it must be by cherishing noble hopes and purposes—by having something to do and to live for, which is worthy of humanity—and which, by expanding the capacities of the soul, gives expansion and symmetry to the body which contains it. —Professor Upham.
